

Iain Sheridan is a senior counsel with an Oxford MBA (Exeter College). Triple-qualified (Barrister England & Wales; Solicitor Australia; Barrister Ireland), a former member of the Wiener Rechtsanwaltskammer, and a member of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators (MCIArb). Trained at One Crown Office Row and at A&O Shearman (financial services regulatory practice group). Conducting advocacy in the commercial High Courts and acting as lead counsel in international arbitrations.

Over 20 years' experience, including roles at ABN AMRO, Deutsche Bank, Barclays, Bank of America and Fidelity Investments. Former Head of Legal (EMEA and APAC) for the boutique FIG investment bank Fox-Pitt Kelton. In-depth understanding of technology, including AI/machine learning and intellectual property. Climate change knowledge based on master's degree in Geoscience from Cambridge (Fitzwilliam College) and the CFA Institute Sustainable Investing certificate.

Iain is the author of Semiconductors: Law, Strategy and Tax, 2025 (Elgar Publishing), and founder/chair of the Global Chip Law Association (GCLA) - see www.chiplaw.org/. He is also the author of Financial Regulation and Technology – A Legal and Compliance Guide, 2022 (Elgar Publishing), and a committee member of the Financial Services Lawyers Association (FSLA) – see <https://fsla.org.uk/>.

His journal articles are widely cited, and include publications with Oxford University Press and the Royal Society. His arbitration article “Qualitative Analytical Models for Arbitration”, 2016 (Journal of International Arbitration, Wolters Kluwer) has influenced both established and new arbitrators from around the world.

For more information, please see both www.mountfordchambers.com/profile/iain-sheridan/; and www.iainsheridan.info