

Vivian Elvers represents parties in complex disputes before state courts, arbitral tribunals, and out of court, focusing on commercial, antitrust, and energy law, as well as post-merger disputes. She also acts as a tribunal secretary in arbitral proceedings, in particular before the ICC, HKIAC, and the DIS, as well as an arbitrator in ad hoc arbitration.

She studied at the University of Hamburg and received her master's degree from Columbia University in New York, USA. Vivian has worked as a graduate editor for the American Review of International Arbitration and is a co-founder of the Refugee Law Clinic Hamburg.

Vivian is admitted to the bar in Hamburg and New York.
